

TIER COMMISSION

DESCRIPTION

The layer commission refers to the structure of commission distribution among the parties involved in the sale of the property. This commission is split between the listing agent. This layered distribution ensures that all parties who contribute to the successful transaction are compensated for their efforts, providing motivation for agents to facilitate smooth and efficient deals.

Total Commission Pool: 6%

The Golden Rule: The person who closes the deal gets 6%.

1. Direct Sales:

The Person who sells the land directly from the point of contact of the Company gets 6% as a Commission.

2. Direct Referral (Direct Introducer - 1st Upline):

The Person who sells the land in contact of the direct sales person gets 6% as a Commission and the Person who referred them will get 3% as a referral commission.

3. 1st Layer sales (Grand-Introducer - 2nd Upline):

The Person who sells the land in contact of the direct referral person gets 6% as a commission and the person who referred them will get 3% as a Referral commission and the Direct sales person will get 2% as a Referral commission.

4. 2nd Layer sales (Great-Grand-Introducer - 3rd Upline):

The Person who sells the land in contact of the 1st layer sales gets 6% as a commission and the 1st layer sales person who referred them will get 3% as a referral commission and the Direct referral person will get 2% as a Referral commission and the Direct sales person will get 1% as a Referral commission.

AWARDS and REWARDS

- In a competitive sales environment, recognizing and rewarding high achievers is crucial for motivation and retention. When individuals meet their targeted sales goals, they are eligible for promotion and rewards based on their performance.
- The top performer, who achieves the highest sales, is promoted to Zonal Head, accompanied by a substantial reward and the esteemed rank of 1st place. This role signifies leadership and strategic oversight at a regional level.
- The second-highest achiever is promoted to Business Manager, receiving a commendable reward and ranked 2nd. This position involves managing operations and driving sales within a business unit.
- Lastly, the third-highest performer earns the title of Business Development Manager, with a respectable reward and a 3rd place ranking, focusing on expanding the company's market presence and fostering new business opportunities.

These structured promotions and rewards not only incentivize sales staff to surpass their targets but also help cultivate a culture of excellence and ambition within the organization.

TIER COMMISSION

- In a tiered commission structure, the "Company Dealer" (CD) represents the first layer who will get 6% if the sale is closed directly by them. This individual has a direct relationship with the company and serves as the primary point of contact. They are responsible for establishing initial partnerships and are rewarded with a commission for their efforts.
- Below the CD is the "Assistant Company Dealer" (ACD), who is introduced by the CD will get 6% if the sale is closed directly by them and the CD who introduced the ACD will get 3% for the Team sales and forms the second layer of the commission hierarchy.
- ACDs expand the network further by bringing in additional participants, often referred to as their own ACDs, in subsequent layers and will get 6% if they close the deal directly and 3%, 2% and 1% for the person who introduced them will be the third and the upcoming layer.
- This cascading structure allows for widespread growth and incentivizes each participant to actively engage and expand their network, benefiting from commissions based on the collective sales and introductions generated at each tier.
